HONOURING ESPERANTO ON INTERNATIONAL MOTHER LANGUAGE DAY

International Mother Language Day is all about celebrating linguistic diversity and what better time to talk about Esperanto? If languages were like siblings, then Esperanto would be the mother who keeps the family connected. Just like a mother makes sure her children stay in touch, Esperanto links different languages and even entire language families. It borrows from Romance, Germanic, and Slavic tongues, acting as a bridge that helps speakers of different backgrounds find common linguistic ground. In a way, it's not just a language—it's a unifying force that helps maintain harmony among Europe's many languages, much like a mother does with her kids.

Esperanto is the world's most widely spoken constructed language, designed not just for communication but for connection. Back in 1887, a visionary named Ludwik Lejzer Zamenhof created Esperanto as a neutral, easy-to-learn second language, one that could help people bridge cultural divides and find common ground.

While it never became the global go-to he dreamed of, it's still alive and thriving today, proving that language is more than just words—it's a way to bring people together.

Ludwik Lejzer Zamenhof wasn't just a linguist; he was a man with a mission. Growing up in Bialystok, Poland—a town where multiple ethnic groups coexisted but often clashed—he saw how language could be a barrier instead of a bridge. Determined to change that, he created Esperanto: a simple, neutral, and logical language that anyone could pick up quickly. He introduced it to the world in 1887 under the pen name Doktoro Esperanto ("Doctor Hopeful"), and the name stuck—not just for him, but for his entire linguistic creation.

Why Esperanto Still Matters

Esperanto may not have taken over the world, but it's far from forgotten. It's like Pasporta Servo, where people host fellow speakers for free.

- A Language of Peace – At its heart, Esperanto was created to bring people together, not divide them. It's a language with a mission—to foster understanding across cultures.

Esperanto's European Roots

Though designed as a universal language, Esperanto feels familiar to many Europeans because it borrows heavily from their languages. Around 80% of its vocabulary comes from Romance languages (like Spanish, French, and Italian), with bits and pieces from German, Greek, and Slavic tongues thrown in. That makes it particularly easy to learn if you already speak a European language.

become a symbol of unity, a global community, and a fascinating linguistic experiment all in one. Here's why it still holds a special place in the language landscape:

- Super Easy to Learn – With no irregular verbs, phonetic spelling, and

- Phonetic Spelling – No silent letters, no weird exceptions—words are spelled exactly how they sound.
- No Grammatical Headaches – No gendered nouns, no crazy verb conjugations, just a clean and consistent system.
- Endless Word Creativity – Thanks to a nifty system of prefixes and suffixes, you can build new words on the fly, making it super flexible straightforward grammar, Esperanto is way simpler than most natural languages.

- A Community That Feels Like Family – Esperanto speakers around the world use it for books, music, international gatherings, and even travel through networks

On International Mother Language Day, Esperanto stands as a reminder that language isn't just about words—it's about connection. What started as one man's dream has grown into a global movement that continues to bring people together. Whether you see it as a linguistic experiment, a cultural curiosity, or a practical tool, Esperanto proves that a shared language can create a sense of belonging across borders. And in a world that often feels divided, that's something worth celebrating.

From Martyr to Messenger of Love

Valentine's Day is shrouded in mystery, its origins and patron saint steeped in legend and folklore. Some say it started as a pagan ritual celebrating the coming of spring, while others believe it was a Christian holiday honoring Saint Valentine. The truth may never be fully known, but one thing is certain: the story of Valentine and his impact on the world continues to fascinate and inspire.

According to one legend, Valentine was a priest who lived in Rome during the third century. At that time, Emperor Claudius II had issued a decree forbidding young men from marrying. He believed that single men made better soldiers than those with wives and families, and he wanted to increase the number of soldiers in his army. However, Valentine saw the injustice of this decree and continued to perform marriages for young lovers in secret.

Valentine's actions were discovered, and he was taken before Claudius. The emperor was impressed by Valentine's intelligence and charm, but he was also furious that he had defied the law. He ordered Valentine to be put to death, and on February 14th, around the year 270 AD, he was executed.

Despite his tragic fate, Valentine's message of love and commitment lived on. People began to see him as a symbol of true love and sacrifice, and his legacy was honored every year on February 14th. Today, Valentine's Day has evolved into a day to celebrate love and relationships, and to honor the memory of a man who dared to defy the laws of his time for the sake of love.

INTERNATIONAL MOTHER LANGUAGE DAY

International Mother Language Day is a global celebration and a reminder in which we are told and explained about the importance of the protection and promotion of all languages. This day reminds us our identity and also the culture that we represent. And this beautiful day annually and observed on February 21st. This day is declared by UNESCO in 1999, to remember or as a memory of all those students who sacrificed their lives fighting for the recognition of their mother tongue in Bengali Language Movement of 1952. In a world where thousands of languages are spoken, many of them are extinct.

So, this day serves as a reminder of the urgent need to safeguard these linguistic treasures. International Mother Language Day is not just an event, it also a wake-up call, reminding everybody that every mother tongue plays a different role in everyone's life. Government, educational institutions are making many implementations to support linguistic diversity, such as multilingual education policies, promoting language learning at all levels etc. Every citizen of every country should have the same respect and love for all languages as they have for their mother tongue.

આંતરરાષ્ટ્રીય માતૃભાષા દિવસ

કેમ્બ્રિજ ડિક્શનરી માતૃભાષાને પ્રારંભિક બાળપણમાં મેળવેલી ભાષા તરીકે વ્યાખ્યાયિત કરે છે. તે પ્રથમ ભાષા છે જે વ્યક્તિ જન્મ સમયે શીખે છે અને પ્રારંભિક વિકાસમાં માહિતી એકત્ર કરવા માટેના પાયા તરીકે સેવા આપે છે. શાળા અથવા પૂર્વશાળામાં જતા પહેલા પણ, બાળક સામાન્ય રીતે તેમની માતૃભાષા શીખે છે.

મૂળ ભાષા બીજી ભાષા તરીકે સેવા આપે છે જેને આપણે સમજીએ છીએ અને શૈક્ષણિક સેટિંગ્સ અને વ્યાવસાયિક વાતાવરણમાં તેનો ઉપયોગ કરીએ છીએ કારણ કે આપણે પુખ્તવયમાં પહોંચીએ છીએ. તેથી, માતૃભાષા એક મજબૂત પાયો સ્થાપિત કરવા માટે નિર્ણાયક છે, જે આપણને માતૃભાષામાં પ્રાવીણ્ય વિકસાવવા માટે સક્ષમ બનાવે છે.

તેથી જ્યારે તમે તમારા જન્મ સમયે તમારા માતા-પિતાને એકબીજામાં "ગુજરાતી" બોલતા જોશો ત્યારે તમારી માતૃભાષા ગુજરાતી બની જશે.

હા...! મારી માતૃભાષા 'ગુજરાતી' છે. મારો જન્મ મુંબઈમાં થયો હતો અને મને ગર્વ છે કે હું મુંબઈનો ગુજરાતી છું. હા, હું કહી શકું કે 'મરાઠી' અથવા 'અંગ્રેજી' મારા માટે બીજી ભાષા છે પણ 'ગુજરાતી' એ પ્રથમ ભાષા છે જે મેં બાળપણમાં શીખી છે અને તે મારી માતૃભાષા છે.

International Mother's Language Day

The Cambridge Dictionary defines a mother tongue as the language acquired during early childhood. It is the first language a person learns at birth and serves as the foundation for gathering information in early development. Even prior to attending school or preschool, a child typically learns their mother tongue.

The native language serves as the second language that we comprehend and utilize in educational settings and professional environments as we reach adulthood. Therefore, the mother tongue is crucial for establishing a solid foundation, enabling us to develop our proficiency in the native language.

So when you see your parents speaking "Gujarati" among themselves when you are born then your mother Language becomes Gujarati.

Yes...! My Mother's Language is 'Gujarati'. I was born in Mumbai and I'm proud to be a Gujarati from Mumbai. Yes, I can say 'Marathi' or 'English' is the second Language for me but 'Gujarati' is the first language I have learned during my childhood and it is my mother language.

I take great pride in my mother language, as it fosters a profound connection to my cultural identity, heritage, and sense of belonging. It enables me to engage with my family and community not only in Mumbai but also in my native Gujarat, allowing me to reconnect with the rich histories of my ancestors. This connection reinforces my understanding of my individuality and significantly boosts my confidence during challenging times.

For instance, knowing that my ancestors were Rajput warriors who chose death over surrender inspires me to persevere and strive for success until the very end. There are occasions when I perceive a decline in our interest in our mother tongue. However, the National Education Policy, along with institutions like the University of Mumbai and other prominent universities, is revitalizing the significance of value-added languages and our cultural heritage, including the Vedas and Shastras, within academic curricula. This initiative is fostering an awareness among our youth regarding the importance of their native languages, while also providing opportunities to study their preferred languages across various courses.

The National Education Policy (NEP) is set to introduce a Mother Language Course aimed at enhancing the restoration of national languages. The Intercultural Development Research Association (IDRA) emphasizes that continued engagement with one's mother tongue beyond childhood is crucial for appreciating cultural heritage. This practice promotes mutual understanding and respect, while also safeguarding the rich cultural and traditional legacies inherent in every language globally. Nevertheless, significant challenges remain in ensuring that all learners have the right to education in their mother language. Proficiency in one's mother language is vital for cognitive development, effective communication, and cultural connection, and it can also facilitate the acquisition of additional languages and improve academic performance.

Observing Mother Language Day instills a profound sense of pride, a connection to cultural heritage, and a feeling of belonging within a community. It fosters a strong commitment to preserving and promoting the richness and diversity of languages, often accompanied by nostalgia and a deep appreciation for the ability of one's native language to convey identity and emotions. While I hold respect for all languages spoken around the world, I take particular pride in my Mother Language.

भाषा, संकल्पना आणि संस्कृती

प्रास्ताविक

खरोखर पाहाता भाषेचा आपल्या सभोवतालच्या जगाशी नैसर्गिक किंवा तार्किक काहीच संबंध नसतो. ध्वनींच्या जोडणीतून तयार झालेले शब्द, तसंच ते जतन करण्यासाठी निर्माण केले गेलेली लिपी हे एका भाषासमाजामधले संकेत असतात.

ह्यामुळे आपल्याला जाणवतं की भाषा म्हणजे माणसाच्या सर्जकतेचं प्रतीकच आहे. भाषा कशी निर्माण होते आणि तिचा वापर कसा केला जातो, ह्यावर शतकानुशतकं विचार चालू आहे. काही प्रमाणात आपण तिच्यात डोकावून बघू शकतो. पण म्हणून भाषेचं कोडं सुटलं आहे किंवा तिच्याबद्दलचं कुतूहल कमी झालं आहे, असं मुळीच नाही.

विसाव्या शतकातल्या ६० आणि ७० च्या दशकांत एकूणच विविध क्षेत्रांत बरेच नवे सिद्धांत मांडले गेले. तसेच भाषेविषयी काही नवे मूलभूत सिद्धांत मांडले गेले. 'भाषेतल्या घटकांचं एकमेकांशी नातं असतं. घटकांच्या ह्या नात्यांमध्ये एक प्रकारचा ताण असतो. ह्या ताणामुळे भाषेच्या संरचनेचं संतुलन राखलं जातं. अशा रीतीनं भाषा ही एक स्वयंपूर्ण आणि स्वायत्त संरचना असते.' ह्या फार्दिनांद द सोस्यूरच्या सिद्धांतानं नवीन विचारांचा पाया घातला. भाषेकडे बघण्याचा दृष्टिकोनच त्यामुळे बदलला.

माणसाला भाषाक्षमता उपजत असते. त्याबरोबर व्याकरणक्षमताही उपजत असते आणि त्यासाठी आवश्यक यंत्रणा मानवी मेंदूमध्ये जन्मजात असते, असं प्रतिपादन नॉम चॉम्स्कीनं 'वैश्विक व्याकरणा'ची संकल्पना मांडताना केलं. लेव्ही स्ट्राऊस ह्या मानववंशशास्त्रज्ञानं असा सिद्धांत मांडला की, मिथाकांची मूळ संरचना सार्वत्रिक आहे. कोणत्याही संस्कृतीत आणि भाषेत असलेल्या पौराणिक गोष्टी, मिथकं वरवर पाहाता कितीही वेगळी दिसली तरी मिथाकांच्या तळाशी असलेल्या संरचनेत कमालीचं साधर्म्य असतं. जेराई जेनेटनं प्रतिपादन केलं की, कोणत्याही वाङ्मय आणि समीक्षेच्या मुळाशी एक अविचल पायाभूत तत्त्व असतं. आपण एका भूर्जपत्रावरचं पाठ्य खोडून त्यावरच नवीन पाठ्य लिहीत असतो. रोलॉ बार्थ आणि ज्युलिया क्रिस्तेव्हा यांनी वाङ्मय आणि समीक्षा क्षेत्रात 'आंतरपाठ्याचा' सिद्धांत मांडला. त्यानुसार कोणतीही गोष्ट नवीन लिहिली जात नाही; तर जुन्या पाठ्यांच्या संदर्भातच नवी पाठ्य तयार होत असतात.

थोडक्यात म्हणजे ह्या तज्ज्ञ आणि संशोधक मंडळींनी वैश्विकता, समान मूलभूत तत्त्व आणि माणसाला जन्मतः मिळालेल्या क्षमता यांचा आपापल्या मार्गांनी आणि आपापल्या क्षेत्रामधे शोध घेतला. ह्या सगळ्या सिद्धांतांचा एकूण सूर असा आहे की, माणसाच्या मूलभूत नैसर्गिक क्षमतांच्या पायावर आणि सामाईक मूळ ढाच्यावर विविध भाषा, संस्कृती, वाङ्मय निर्माण होतं. अर्थात अशा सैद्धांतिक मांडणीचा प्रतिवादही केला गेलेला आहे, विशेषतः चॉम्स्कीच्या प्रतिपादनाचा.

संकल्पना आणि शब्द

सैद्धांतिक मांडणी आणि आपण प्रत्यक्षात काय बघतो, काय अनुभवतो यात तफावत असू शकते. प्रस्तुत चर्चेसाठी आपण भाषेकडे कसं बघतो, हेच महत्त्वाचं आहे. आपल्याला दिसतं की, प्रत्येक भाषासमाजात अनेक संकल्पना निर्माण होतात. त्यासाठी नवनवीन ध्वनिसाखळ्या निर्माण केल्या जातात. काही संकल्पना पुष्कळ भाषांना सामाईक असतात, तर काही संकल्पना संपूर्ण वेगळ्या असतात.

आपण निसर्गातल्या गोष्टींसाठी आपसूक शब्द शोधतो. कुत्रं, मांजर, पक्षी, फुलं हे नैसर्गिक गट आहेत आहेत. त्यांना आपण एकेक नाव देतो. त्याचं म्हणणं असं आहे : लहान मुलं सतत असंख्य प्रश्न विचारत असतात. पण अगदी लहान मूलसुद्धा आईला कधी असा प्रश्न विचारत नाही की, हे भूभू आहे की ही माऊ आहे; किंवा हा पक्षी आहे की फूल आहे. माणसाला ही एक जन्मतः जाणीव असते आणि अशा गटवारीमध्ये छोटी मुलंही सहसा घोटाळा करत नाहीत.

एका माणसाला एका प्राचीन ग्रंथालयात धुळीनं माखलेलं एक पुस्तक मिळतं. ते बहुधा कोणीच कधी हातात घेतलेलं नसतं. त्या पुस्तकातल्या गोष्टीत एक प्रवासी १८ व्या शतकात एका लांबच्या बेटावर जातो.

तिथे यजमानांच्या सांगण्यावरून त्याच्या लक्षात येतं, की तिथल्या भाषेत 'पांढरा गुलाब आणि लाल पोटाचा पक्षी सोडून सगळे पक्षी' यांचा एक गट होतो आणि त्यासाठी ते 'गुक्षी' असा शब्द वापरतात. आणि 'पांढरा गुलाब सोडून बाकी सगळे गुलाब आणि लाल पोटाचा पक्षी' यांना मिळून 'पलाब' असा एक शब्द आहे. ही गोष्ट ऐकल्यावर कोणीही अचंबित होईल आणि भांबावून जाईल. कोणालाही प्रश्न पडेल, की असं कसं? हे कसं शक्य आहे? अर्थात ह्या गोष्टीचा मतितार्थ इतकाच, की अशी विभागणी आपल्याला नैसर्गिक वाटत नाही. अशी गटवारी मानवी भाषांमध्ये होऊ शकत नाही. कोणत्याही भाषेत सर्व पक्षी एका गटात आणि सर्व गुलाब वेगळ्या गटात अशी विभागणी आपोआप होते. कारण माणसाकडे अशी जन्मतः एक अंतःप्रेरणा असते.

अरे खरंच की! आपल्या भाषेत संकल्पनांची गटवारी होते, तशी ती इतर भाषांमधेही होते. शब्द वेगळे असतील, पण ह्या संकल्पना सामाईक आहेत. शब्द म्हणजे तरी शेवटी काय? तर आपण - म्हणजे एक भाषा बोलणारे आपण सर्वजण - अशा गटांना नावं देतो. शब्द म्हणजे ही नावंच तर असतात!

आपण नुसतं 'कुत्र', 'मांजर' अशी एकेका गटाला नावं देऊन थांबत नाही, तर 'गावठी', 'शिकारी' अशी पुढेही वर्गवारी करतो; आणि शेवटी एकल कुत्र्यालाही आपण नाव देतो! आपण सहज सांगतो, 'आमचा टॉमी ना, फार हुशार आहे.'

Language, Concepts, and Culture

Introduction

In reality, language has no natural or logical connection with the world around us. Words formed from the combination of sounds and the scripts created to preserve them are signals in a language community.

This makes us realise that language is a symbol of human creativity. We can glance into it, as how language is created and used has been thought about for centuries. But this does not mean that the mystery of language has been solved or that curiosity about it has diminished.

In the 60s and 70s of the twentieth century, many new theories were proposed in various fields. Also, some new fundamental theories were proposed about language. 'The elements of language are related to each

In the 60s and 70s of the twentieth century, many new theories were proposed in various fields. Also, some new fundamental theories were proposed about language. 'The elements of language are related to each other. There is a kind of tension in this relationship of the elements. This tension maintains the balance of the structure of the language. In this way, language is a self-contained and autonomous structure.' This theory of Ferdinand de Saussure laid the foundation for new thinking. It changed the way we look at language.

Humans are born with linguistic ability. Along with that, grammatical ability is also born, and the necessary mechanism for this is innate in the human brain, asserted Noam Chomsky while introducing the concept of 'universal grammar.'

Anthropologist Levi Strauss theorised that the basic structure of myths is universal. No matter how different the myths and legends in any culture and language may appear on the surface, the underlying structure of myths is remarkably similar. Gerard Genet asserted that there is an unwavering fundamental principle at the root of any literature and criticism. We erase the text on a parchment and write a new text on it. Roland Barthes and Julia Kristeva proposed the theory of 'intertext' in the field of literature and criticism. According to this, nothing new is written; rather, new texts are created in the context of old texts.

In short, these experts and researchers explored the universality, common fundamental principles, and innate abilities of humans in their ways and in their fields. The overall tone of all these theories is that different languages, cultures, and literatures are created based on human basic natural abilities and a common basic structure. Of course, such a theoretical framework has also been refuted, especially Chomsky's assertion.

“Language is a process of free creation; its laws and principles are fixed, but the manner in which the principles of generation are used is free and infinitely varied. Even the interpretation and use of words involves a process of free creation.”

Concepts and words

There may be a difference between theoretical formulation and what we see and experience. For the present discussion, how we look at language is important. We see that many concepts are created in every language community. For this, new sound chains are created. Some concepts are common to many languages, while some concepts are completely different.

We find common words for things in nature. Dogs, cats, birds, and flowers are natural groups. We give them names. Small children are constantly asking countless questions. But even a very small child never asks his mother, Is this Bhu Bhu or is this Mew, or is this Bhu Bhu or is this Mew? Humans have this innate awareness, and even small children do not usually make mistakes in such groupings.

A man finds a dusty book in an ancient library. It has probably never been picked up by anyone. In the story of the book, a traveller goes to a remote island in the 18th century. There, on the advice of the hosts, he realises that in the local language, there is a group of 'all birds except the white rose and the red-bellied bird,' and they use the word 'gukshi' for it. And 'all roses except the white rose and the red-bellied bird' together have the word 'palab.'. Anyone who hears this story will be surprised and bewildered. Anyone will ask, how is this possible? Of course, the meaning of this story is that such a division does not seem natural to us. Such a division cannot be made in human languages. In any language, all birds are in one group, and all roses are in another group. Because humans have such an innate instinct.

Oh, indeed! There are groupings of concepts in our language, just as there are in other languages. The words may be different, but these concepts are common. What are words after all? So we—that is, all of us who speak the same language—give names to such groups. Words are just names! We do not stop at naming individual groups like 'dog' or 'cat,' but we also classify them further like 'villager' or 'hunter,' and finally we even give names to individual dogs! We easily say, 'Our Tommy is very clever.'

मातृभाषा हमरा सब के जीवन, सोच विचार के आदि भावना के, बधनाइ कौर वाला-

मातृभाषा, एकटा एहन मध्यस्थ अछि, जई स संसार में सबटा मनुख अपन जीवन, सोच और विचार के जोड़े अछि। एकरा दु तरीका स देख सके अछि। पहिल, जे मनुख जे अपन मातृभाषा के छोड़िक दोसर भाषा सिखल के अपन आस-पास के समाज स ओइ काल में जकरा “कृटिकल पीरियड हैपैथिस्स” कहल जाय छै, और दोसर ओ भाषा जे अहाँ के मै-बाबू बाजे अछि हूनकर घोर पर और कोनो दोसर भाषा नहीं।

कृटिकल पीरियड हैपैथिस्स, ई कहे छै जे एकटा छोट बच्चा के पहिल पाइच साल मे निक सँ भाषा के संकेत भेट जाई अछि त ओकरा भाषा सिख में कोनो दिकत नहीं छै, लेकिन एकटा छोट बच्चा के ई संकेत नहीं भेट पाबे या त ओकरा निक सँ बजनाई नहीं आई पैत।

कोनो-कोनो जगह दुनिया में भाषा स बड समाज के चिनहल जाई छै, और जखने ओ भाषा के बाजे वाला लोक घट जाई छै और नहीं त खत्म भौ जाई छै, तखन ओ समाज से हो खत्म भौ जाई छै।

मातृभाषा के सहेजू क्राई लेल, कनेडा में जन्मसँ, एकटा बांग्लादेशक, राफिकुल हस्सन, जे भाषा सक्रियत के काज करै छैलकिन, १९९८ में उ.न. के जेनरल सेक्रेटरी कोफि एन्न के एकटा खत लिखलकिन, इ कहै ल कि विश्व भौर में एकटा मातृभाषा दिवस बनाएल चाहि और ओकर तिथि २१, फरवरी चुनल खिन। ओई दिन २१, फरवरी के अंतर्राष्ट्रीय मातृभाषा के दिन माने जाई अछि।

ई तिथि ए लै चुन गेल किया कि एई दिन पर पूरब पाकिस्तान में बंगाली भाषा के औपचारिक भाषा के मांग उठलके, किया के पाविस्तान में उर्दु के राष्ट्रीय भाषा बना गेल छेले और एकटा गतिविधि के जन्मसँ भौ गेल और ओई में बड लोक सब के जीवन खत्म भौ गेल गोली चेलनाई के कारण, और बंगाली भाषा के हटबे लै सबटा लोकसँ संबंध सभा के बंद कौ देल के और ओई दिन के इतिहास में बंगाली भाषा गतिविधि से चिनहल जाई या।

Mother tongue, something that is close to every individual's hearts and minds and defines his or her roots, existence and identity could be classified in two ways. First, the language that an individual acquires during the Critical Period Hypothesis from his or her immediate surroundings, primarily the individual's home, irrespective of the person's native tongue could be classified as mother language. Secondly, in a vice-versa manner, it could be classified as the individual's native tongue, irrespective of the language that the person has acquired before acquiring his native tongue.

The critical period hypothesis states that during the initial years of a child's life, with the presence of adequate stimuli and relying on the brain's neuroplasticity, if decent amount of language input is presented then the child can fully grasp the function of language. However, during this period if inadequate stimuli and improper input are present then the child might lose the ability or command over language.

In some instances, mother tongue is a very strong marker of a person's community or ethnicity as compared to religion or nationality and if the speakers decrease in numbers then eventually the language will cease to exist and with that so will the particular society, tribe or community associated with it.

In order to preserve endangered languages and promote linguistic diversity, Rafiqul Islam, a Bangladeshi born Canadian language activist, wrote a letter in 1998, to Kofi Annan, the then UN Secretary General, asking him to preserve the endangered languages of the world and establish an International Mother Language Day. Thus, February 21, was recognized as the day for the germination of the International Mother Language Day.

The importance of this day, dates back to Feb 21, 1952, when mass protests erupted in East Pakistan, which is at the present moment is known as the independent state of Bangladesh, demanding the recognition of Bengali as one of the national and official languages of Pakistan as Urdu was given primary importance over other languages in Pakistan and the state deemed anyone who didn't communicate in Urdu as a traitor. In order to suppress the Bengali movement and its proponents, public meetings and rallies were suspended and police shootout took place on the same date which later went on to be recognized as Bengali Language movement in history.
